Traffic Flow, Traffic Congestion, Traffic Growth: Can Planning Help Deal with It?

by Bill Rowland

Future traffic flow was the primary concern addressed by 25 residents who attended the city council's April 11 public hearing on city recommendations regarding the Greenbelt-College Park-Langley Park Master Plan. And traffic on Greenbelt Road was the topic the preceding week (April 6) when council members joined the Advisory Planning Board (APB) in a work session with staff members from the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (M-NCPPC).

During the two-hour Master Plan hearing, Mayor Gil Weidenfeld led the audience item-by-item through more than 60 specific recommendations by APB, together with modifications proposed by council on about a quarter of those recommendations. Less than two dozen items brought audience reaction.

One feature that provoked repeated comments was the Perimeter Road, proposed in the 1970 Master Plan to traverse the entire northern part of the city and now recommended by APB and council for deletion from the new Master Plan being prepared by M-NCPPC staff. One resident expressed her shock at seeing the idea of a Perimeter Road still in existence, saying she thought it had been put to rest in 1977. After Weidenfeld explained that the "road" must still be erased from the planning maps, Councilman Thomas White clarified the matter by observing, "We've notified next of kin, but we haven't had the funeral yet."

The Perimeter Road recurred in subsequent items, each time bringing forth further negative discussion. Mayor Pro Tem Richard Pilski finally spoke in support of the people on council who had worked for a Perimeter Road at the time a three-school complex was being planned for the northern edge of the city. Pilski, noting that he was on that council, said the road would have been important if the schools had been built, and "at that time we acted for the good of the community."

To this, White responded that at that time there were citizens (including himself) who fought both the schools and the Perimeter Road and who never gave up in their opposition. Said White, "If we're telling the history of the Perimeter Road, we should tell the whole history."

Other particular citizen concerns included Greenbelt Road traffic, the traffic burden that Commuter Rail and Metrorail stations west of Springhill Lake will add, and how traffic access would be dealt with in the event that Parcels 1 and 2 (between Greenbelt Homes Inc. and the Parkway) and Parcel 15 (south of Greenbelt Lake adjacent to the Beltway) are developed. Pilski pushed for finding some means of financing an intracity bus system, saying, "It's something I'm broaching to the council."

White said he would favor having the issue on the next meeting agenda, with the comment that "He's broaching something I've espoused all along." (The subject was included on the next agenda.)

Zoning Problem

City Manager James Giese noted that APB had not dealt in its report with areas of the city, especially Greenbelt Homes Inc., now zoned Residential Planned Community (R-P-C). Giese said that GHI does not fit into any present zoning category without being nonconforming. Giese thinks the city must address the issue, especially because if any buildings in a nonconforming zone are destroyed, See TRAFFIC, page 8, col. 1

Arts Fair Coming

Greenbelt artists are still needed for the Cultural Arts Center Fair planned for June 4 in the Center Mall.

The fair will give local craftspeople the opportunity to share their varied talents with the community. Sponsored by the CAC as part of the weekend's Greenbelt Day celebration, the event plans to feature arts from painting to pottery, needlecrafts to chair caning.

Interested artists should call Barbara McGee Kender, 474-8571, or Eileen Peterson, 345-2454, as soon as possible, as the number of participants will be limited to provide maximum variety.

FAREWELL PLANNED FOR JIM SMITH

Greenbelt's newest committee is the "Friends of Jim Smith." Formed spontaneously by several Greenbelters, this group has a bittersweet purpose — to give Jim Smith and his wife Mary Agnes a warm good-bye.

Currently president of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI), Smith has served on the GHI Board of Directors for a total of 17 years. But in just two months, the Smiths will leave Greenbelt. He has accepted a position as head of the Department of Agriculture's Far Eastern Regional Research Office in New Delhi, India.

So that everyone may say farewell to the Smiths, the committee is planning a reception on Sunday, June 12 at the Greenbelt Recreation Center Multi-purpose Room from 3-6 p.m. Light refreshments and entertainment will be provided.

The committee is raising funds to cover the costs of this event. All Greenbelters are encouraged to participate.

J. Krob Dismissed from Police Post

A police hearing board decided unanimously that John C. Krob, Greenbelt police lieutenant, be dismissed from the department immediately. The board found Krob guilty of 13 charges of violating Greenbelt city rules, regulations and policies. According to the board's findings, announced on March 30, Krob brought the Greenbelt Police Department into disrepute when, on two occasions, he sold weapons which he had removed from the department and represented as his own. In other charges stemming from the weapons sales, he was also found guilty of making untruthful statements, falsifying, removing and tampering with property and evidence and failing to observe the law.

Krob was suspended without pay from the Greenbelt department in June, 1982. After indictment by a grand jury on charges stemming from sale of the weapons, Krob pleaded guilty in Prince Georges County Circuit Court last October to one charge of misconduct in office. In December he was sentenced to 5 years probation and the performance of 300 hours of community service. Later, this judgment was changed to probation before judgment, which is a finding of no guilt.

According to Krob's attorney, Benjamin Wolman, no decision has been made about appealing the police board's findings. If an appeal is made, it will be to the Prince Georges County Circuit Court, the same court which heard the criminal charges. A decision about the appeal will be made by April 24, Wolman said.

Holiday Inn to Open This Fall In Maryland Trade Center Park

by Elaine Skolnik

Coakley & Williams and Sunstates Properties, Inc. have signed a franchise agreement with Holiday Inns for a 212 room hotel in the Maryland Trade Center Park in Greenbelt. The full service hotel will feature a 200 seat combination restaurant/lounge overlooking a landscaped outdoor pool, deck and dining area. The seven-story facility is slated to open in the fall of 1983.

The 34-acre Maryland Trade Center Park is located south of the Greenway Shopping Center at the interchange of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and the Beltway. Already on site is the Maryland Trade Center Building No. 1, also dubbed the "OAO" building. A second office tower is expected to rise late this year. Construction of the third tower is dependent on marketing conditions as well as required improvements to Greenbelt Road and the extension of Hanover Parkway to Good Luck Road.

On the drawing boards also is a banquet/conference center to be operated by Martin Resnick of Martin's West, a catering operator in the Baltimore area. The facility will be located adjacent to the Holiday Inn.

Construction of the Holiday Inn is already underway. The project is a joint venture between Coakley & Williams, Inc. and Sunstates Properties, Inc. of Raleigh, North Carolina.

Coakley & Williams, General Contractor for the hotel, will have the Hotel Division manage and operate the facility. This is the company's fourth hotel in the Washington D.C. area. The latest to open is The Henley Park Hotel located near the Washington D.C. Convention Center.

A covered walkway will connect the Holiday Inn to the Martin's facility. Construction of the one-and-a-half story building could begin by the end of the summer. The company is in the process of working out financing arrangements under the Maryland Industrial Financing Authority. (The county already has authorized the use of revenue bonds.)

The banquet/conference center will feature space available for meetings and functions of groups ranging from 25 to 2,000 persons. The main ballroom will have a capacity of 2,000 and can be divided into five smaller rooms seating from 100 to 400 persons each. Each of these five rooms is divisible into smaller rooms serving 40 to 100 each. Martin's expects to employ about 293 people on a full and part time basis.

City Asks Improvements to County's Surplus Land Bill

by Jim Harnisch

The Greenbelt City Council voted not to recommend passage of CB-23, a bill before the Prince Georges County Council that would require the county to make surplus county land available to governmental bodies, before offering it for sale to private concerns. While council supports the intent of the bill, the city voted to send the county a letter recommending changes in three provisions of the proposed law.

The county council will hold a public hearing on the bill on Tuesday, April 26, at 1:30 p.m.

In his letter to the county council, Mayor Gil Weidenfeld told the county that council believes the requirement that a letter of intent be filed by interested localities within 30 days of their notification of the land's availability might be unworkable. Weidenfeld's letter goes on to suggest a 60-day period for interested governments to notify the county of intent to purchase land.

The mayor also cited the possible need for financing arrangements and voter referendum in opposing the limit for completion of the transfer of land. The bill currently requires that all transfers be completed within six months, and Weidenfeld's letter recommends changing the period for completion of acquisition to one year.

Another provision of the bill would require that if the public use of the land under which the locality acquired it were to cease, then the land ownership would revert to the county, with the locality being reimbursed for its costs of the original acquisition. Since the land will be transferred to the locality for a price equal to the county's cost in the transfer, the local government might not incur any loss on such an occurrence. However, the mayor pointed out that the land's usefulness as security for loans, or federal grants might be jeopardized if ownership of the acquired land were not permanent. Any equity the city might have gained See SURPLUS LAND, p. 3, col. 1

Single Family Lots

To the Editor:

We have been working for over a year to form an organization for the purpose of purchasing Parcel 4 in Northern Greenbelt. Our intention is to subdivide the land for construction of about 14 single family homes.

At this time we are nearly ready to purchase the land. There are a few openings in the organization for persons who are interested in obtaining a lot. We can be reached at 345-4935 after 7 p.m.

The lack of single family homes in the city is well known and we feel that this type of development is needed in Greenbelt.

THANKS

To the Editor:

We would like to thank the Greenbelt Police Department and, specifically, Cpl. John Lann, who was very helpful and supportive in informing us of the death of our dog and keeping us informed of their investigation into the matter.

We also want to thank the animal warden for the way he handled telling me about the dog's death, in that, he took me aside from my children and told me of the circumstances, instead of just saying it in front of the children. We appreciate that and, once again, thank you!!

SURPLUS LAND cn't fr. p. 1

in the land would also pose a problem in the event the land reverted to the county.

Reversion would also require that the land go back to the county in the original condition in which it was obtained. Determining whether or not improvements on the land had changed the condition of it, and to what extent, are problems Weidenfeld said require the deletion of this reversion provision until further consideration may be given to the matter in consultation with cities and other agencies.

In his letter to the county, Weidenfeld also suggested that municipalities have a say in the disposal and reutilization of surplus school sites. He pointed out that these schools serve as recreation centers as well as community centers. The mayor's letter went on to say that to allow the possibility of uses of these parcels by private purchasers which might impact on the communities "certainly is not in the public interest."

Master Plan for School Sites

The council also voted to accept the report of the Advisory Planning Board, which recommended approval of the county's Preliminary Functional Master Plan for Public School Sites. APB did make two recommendations saying that if the plan is implemented care be taken when property is disposed of to minimize impacts on the surrounding properties, especially in residential areas. APB also suggested that no quick zoning changes be allowed immediately prior to, or following the approval of the plan.

In other business council presented a proclamation declaring Saturday, April 30, "Ride-a-Bike for the Retarded Day." Council recognized the Jaycees for their work with the event, and assured Ken Blue, representing the Jaycees that council would do all they could to aid in this cause.

Council also passed a resolution which lowers single person season pass pool fees from $40 to $35 for Greenbelt residents, and from $75 to $65 for non-residents. This move is intended to increase sales of season passes, especially to those who may have no children or have youngsters under 6 years of age.

Pioneers Teddy and John Murray Leave Greenbelt After 45 Years

John and Teddy Murray reflect on 45 years in Greenbelt as they contemplate today's move to Arizona.

by Eileen Peterson

Like the pioneers of old, Teddy and John Murray are "goin' west," but it's not an easy move after more than 45 years in Greenbelt.

They were pioneers back then, one of the first 25 families to move into the still-under-construction New Town. In October, 1937, a two-bedroom with attic, lights and heat (no phone) cost them $37.50. John, Theodora (Teddy) and little Joann were delighted with their house in "D" block (33-P Ridge).

"We were mostly young couples with small children, with no TV or transportation. The bus line ended in East Riverdale," Teddy recalls. "We were a close-knit group. If we went to a meeting, we'd pay a sitter 50 cents to watch the children in our whole row. Then we'd take our flashlights, because the hip-high lights (so as not to shine into people's eyes) were only at the intersections of the walks." The streets were only hardtop then, and not many people had cars.

Where Greenway shopping center now stands, planes flew out of a private airport. There was swimming in the lake at first, and each "superblock" of houses ("D" block was Ridge-Eastway - Crescent-Gardenway) had its own baseball team. There were contests for best gardens (Ben Goldfaden won a prize), and there were strict rules about what went above the gardens (no washing on the lines after 4 p.m. or on Sunday).

There wasn't much at the beginning, so John and Tedd sat in their living room with a group of neighbors and created . . . first the Cooperator (the forerunner of the News Review) and then the Greenbelt Federal Credit Union.

"About half the paper was sports news," recalls John, who wrote the sports news and was one of those founding the Men's Athletic Club, "so I started the News Parade for just sports." This was in the early days of the war, and the Parade was mimeographed (as was the Cooperator). It ran a contest to name the field with one baseball diamond. The Town Manager was Roy Braden.

John wrote a one-act play for radio station WJSV in the early '40s. The prize-winning play was acted by The Greenbelt Players, and a review remarked that "Joe Muller performed well" (Joe now lives on Lakeview Circle). The Players' first president was Teddy Murray. She had majored in dramatic art at the University of Pennsylvania, and in Greenbelt she found herself acting, selecting the theater curtain and wall colors (the Federal Housing Administration had by then brought in consultants to introduce the cooperative concept with the theater, store, credit union, hairdressers) while John wrote plays and handled publicity.

"Greenbelt News Reel"

John got out his movie camera and shot the "Greenbelt News Reel — Covering All Important Greenbelt Events." It was shown at the Greenbelt Theater before a Sonja Henie movie and, John recalls that Ben Goldfaden appeared in one scene.

The first order of business in November, 1937, was the election of a Town Council. Teddy and 12 men ran for the five seats; she lost by only 9 votes. The Post ran a story with pictures about her candidacy. From then on, it was only natural that she found herself on the committee to get the government to sell the town a quonset hut which became the first youth center (The Drop In).

The average adult population age in Greenbelt in 1939 was under 29, and that year the first Annual Town Fair was born. Churches began forming, and Teddy was on the committee to approach the Catholic Bishop of Baltimore for permission for St. Hugh's to become a parish. She was the first Prefect of the Sodality and the first President of the Ladies of Charity in the early '40s. She was on the Parish Council, and John was one of the early Presidents of the Home and School Association.

Nursing Center Volunteer To Be Feted at Luncheon

In conjunction with National Volunteer Week, Greenbelt Nursing Center will be honoring its volunteers from the community on Saturday, April 23. Individual and group volunteers have been invited to attend Greenbelt's "Love Is Ageless" luncheon from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the nursing center.

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld will be the featured speaker at the luncheon. An awards and recognition program will also be part of the program.

By the time Dennis (now a Calvert County developer), Terry (a mortgage banker), and Timothy (director of relief services, Superior Court) joined Joann (now living in Arizona) Teddy and John had moved to Hillside Road. Thirty years after coming to Greenbelt, the two moved into University Square apartments.

Move to Tempe

John retired from communications work at the Department of Defense in 1965, and Teddy worked for about 10 years in Admissions at the University of Maryland. 1983 is the year to move on to Tempe, Arizona, to be near Joann. So friends and relatives gathered on April 12 in Grenoble Hall to say farewell to a First Family. The Ladies of Charity would lose Teddy, but there isn't a chapter in Tempe, Teddy points out, and maybe once she gets her breath and is unpacked . . .

Teddy and John have left many early Greenbelt memorabilia to the Greenbelt News Review and the library. The last bits of papers and programs appeared at Monday's interview. Among them is a lovely box with etched top and the inscription on the side: "Presented to Theodore Murray, 1938 First President 1939, Greenbelt Players."

The Murrys made Greenbelt history and have left us some of the proofs. They left this morning for 1750 South Price Street, Tempe, Arizona 85281.

Future of GDC Apartments Discussed By GHI Board Among Other Issues

by Mavis Fletcher

A meeting scheduled for 10 p.m. with the auditors mercifully cut short a bitter and unruly meeting of the GHI Board on April 14. With Vice-President Margaret Hogensen wielding the gavel in the absence of President James Smith, the board sat first as the GDC board, which is responsible for the rental apartments owned by the corporation. This body unanimously passed a motion to sell oil at the price paid by GHI to the few members who still have oil-based heating systems. The board then entered into a lengthy discussion of the future of this rental property.

General Manager Tim Mitter had raised the question because the Maryland Community Development Administration had inquired about interest in a loan to GDC for rehabilitation of these apartments. Mitter noted past discussion about upgrading GDC properties and a committee's research into the possibility of converting the property into a cooperative. He also emphasized that the property brings a good return to the corporation at this time. Those who spoke on the issue, including Directors Mark Dombrowski, Frank Gervasi and Janet Cantwell, indicated that their concern centered on the possibility that costs of rehabilitation would force rent increases that would be unaffordable by many current tenants. In the end, the board agreed to continue current maintenance and repairs but not to undertake a major rehab effort.

The GDC board also passed unanimously a motion put forth by Gervasi to authorize management to contract with Storer TV to wire the apartment buildings for cable TV. Director Don Volk stipulated that the number of wires going to the buildings should be minimized and this modification was accepted.

Crawl Space Vents

The GHIDC Board (rehab) then met briefly and adopted a motion by Director Wayne Williams to award a contract to Davenport Insulation to produce and install approximately 2000 crawl space vents in the frame homes at a cost not to exceed $54,000 (about $27 each). The motion, reintroduced for second reading under a waiver of the rules, was passed 6 to 1, with Director Joe Jenkins opposed.

The GHI board of directors meeting started with a report by Nat Shinderman on the Friends of Jim Smith Committee. He outlined plans for honoring the departing GHI president at a dinner on June 6 and at a large public reception on June 12. He solicited the board for a donation to help defray costs of the reception. Williams moved that the board donate $150 for this purpose. Despite a long and bitter attack on Smith from the floor by member Ben Elkins, the motion passed with Gervasi, Volk, Williams and Jenkins supporting it, Cantwell opposed and Director John Lewis and Dombrowski abstaining.

Member Steven Curtis then presented two petitions to be put on the agenda of the upcoming annual membership meeting. The first petition calls for a membership vote on a motion to censure a former GHI board president in a matter connected with a loan made to a GHI member in 1980. The former president, who is not identified in the petition, is clearly identified in accompanying papers given by Curtis to the News Review as present board member Don Volk. The proposed motion would refer the matter to legal counsel for an opinion as to grounds for legal action against Volk. It also directs the board to grant no similar loans in the future.

Ownership Contracts

The second petition presented by Curtis would require the GHI board to treat sales of the free-standing homes and the "new" townhouses in the same manner as the older homes unless there is a legally binding mutual ownership contract which requires that these homes be treated differently. This petition is in apparent reference to a few mutual ownership contracts (fewer than 29 out of almost 1600) which have varying provisions, in some cases requiring GHI to buy back the equity if the owner is unable to sell. According to the general manager's office, these contracts are being brought into line with the standard contracts as sales of these homes occur. Hogensen said that the petitions would be put on the agenda of the membership meeting.

At Mitter's request, the board considered the possibility of reserving unused National Consumer Cooperative Bank (NCCB) loan funds to complete Phase II and possibly to undertake additional projects dubbed "Phase III." Without some action the funds would, in Mitter's phrase, "dry up" on July 1.

After considerable discussion ranging from the time frame for finishing Phase II to the state of repair of the slate roofs, the board finally agreed unanimously to extend the Phase II construction period to June 30, 1984. Mitter will negotiate with NCCB to keep funds available to complete this phase.

The board also passed a motion by Volk instructing the manager to prepare a proposal for using NCCB money for reimbursement (in the form of a buy-out) for work done at the members' expense in certain test units. This buy-out, which had been requested in a letter from Robert Wilhide of 59-G Ridge Rd., affects about six test units. Volk's motion passed 6-0, with Director Lewis, who owns one of the test units, abstaining.

Also on Volk's recommendation, the board requested management to take another look at an option for block home members to install wall insulation.

The directors, trying to beat the 10 p.m. deadline, cleared up certain matters such as formal approval of a slightly amended HUD promissory note and authorization to purchase a small backhoe. But they could not agree to waive the rules governing fences and grant permission to Evelyn Helton of 11-Q Laurel Hill for a 6-foot redwood stockade fence. According to Helton, the fence is needed to protect her privacy and to provide a barrier between her property and an allegedly unkempt yard next door in which a dog is kept. The next door neighbor had also submitted a request for a 5-foot chain link fence but did not appear to support the request.

Helton almost got permission for her fence — Dombrowski made a motion to grant the waiver — but an immediate motion by Jenkins to table the motion prevailed and the requests were referred to the Aesthetics and Environment and the Member Relations Committees. Helton, who was clearly upset, protested the delay, saying that after waiting two years for siding, she was tired of waiting to fix up her home and enjoy it.

The 10 p.m. deadline having passed by this time, the meeting adjourned to executive session with Stegman and Co., Auditors, to consider a new method of allocation of reserves.

Police Blotter

Compiled by Mavis Fletcher

A Soviet diplomat was detained briefly by Greenbelt police on the afternoon of April 16 after he was observed putting articles into his pockets at Marshall's in Beltway Plaza and then attempting to leave the store without paying for them. After the man's identity and diplomatic immunity were verified, he was allowed to leave. The goods were recovered.

Pfc. Fred E. Murray arrested a male resident who had left the scene of a property accident at the Mini-Mart on Breezewood Dr. on April 15. Before the incident was over, the man had been charged with nine offenses including assault and battery, resisting arrest and driving while intoxicated. The man was incarcerated in lieu of bond.

On the evening of April 15, Pfc. Murray arrested a man at a movie theater in the Beltway Plaza. The man hit a male patron who was standing in line. The male non-resident was charged with assault and battery.

And on April 16, Pfc. Murray arrested another non-resident male for assault and battery when the suspect hit a man on Parkway Rd. after a disagreement.

Officer Juan Turner arrested two suspects for shoplifting at Marshall's in Beltway Plaza.

Cpl. Edward D. Blake arrested a non-resident female for shoplifting at Show Off in the Greenway Shopping Center.

The Maryland National Guard reported that two flags had been stolen from poles in front of the Armory on April 13.

Cpl. Thomas W. Miskell was awarded a meritorious commendation by Chief William T. Lane in recognition of his recovery of over 200 stolen vehicles during his career as a police officer.

Police Cadet Cliff Northam has been assigned to patrol the Lake Park now that Spring is here.

GREENBELT'S #1 MOVER!

they may be reconstructed only in conformity with the designated zoning. Paul Aggarwal of M-NCPPC staff told the group that his agency is working to find a solution to this problem. Pilski recommended that a new zoning category, "Historical R-P-C," be established to cover GHI.

Next steps for council, on the heels of the public hearing, will be a work session to thrash out further changes in the city recommendations for the new Master Plan and then adoption of the recommendations during a regular meeting. Sending the recommendations to M-NCPPC will be just the start of a formal give-and-take process expected to continue for two to three years.

Traffic Study

The M-NCPPC technical staff is doing a traffic analysis of Greenbelt Road, intended to show what the impact will be when the ultimate level of development along the road has been reached. The city asked for this study under M-NCPPC's Planning Assistance to Municipalities program. The joint APB-council work meeting on April 6 let M-NCPPC representatives tell the city what has been done so far and what else is planned. The city's representatives in turn asked for additional inclusions in the analysis. M-NCPPC staff want another meeting with the city in early May, by which time they hope to present their findings and recommendations.

Commercial and residential development along Greenbelt Road between U.S. Route 1 and Md. Route 564 (Lanham-Severn Road) is expected to continue for some years, and to keep adding to the traffic problems for the city. Each new development proposal now must include a traffic analysis, but that analysis need consider only such other nearby development as has been approved or is under review by M-NCPPC. These analyses, as presented by developers, do not have to take into account other future development known to be in the conceptual stages.

The M-NCPPC team is listing the development potential of a number of major vacant properties, measuring present peak-hour traffic conditions at key Greenbelt Road intersections, projecting what full-development traffic flow would be at each of those intersections, and looking for ways in which Greenbelt Road and connecting arteries might be improved to relieve future congestion.

Inter-county Connector

Team members in effect told the city it is going to have to face more development, and more traffic problems, and its only choices really will be where it wants to try to persuade state and county to use scarce highway-improvement funds. In that context, the city was told it should reconsider its opposition to an Inter-county Connector highway that would continue eastward rather than stopping at I-95. The M-NCPPC team explained that one owner holds over 2000 acres of gravel-pit land west of Laurel, has concept plans on the shelf to develop the land as industrial (maybe 20,000 employees) or office (40,000 employees), and is willing to give free land for an I-95 interchange. The team suggested that without an Intercounty Connector, a lot of traffic from this huge development would dump right down through Greenbelt.

The M-NCPPC team had one other bit of cheer to offer: They had just learned that 145 acres of vacant land extending south from Windsor Green, known as the Tidler-Magnolia Farms tract, is being considered for development by its owners. According to unofficial information that had reached the team, construction might include 600 condominiums, 240 townhouses, 100 apartments, and over 600,000 square feet of medical-office space.
